

The 10th International Sheep Veterinary Congress (ISVC) will be held in Seville, Spain, in 2023 from 6th – 10th March. The registration and submission of abstracts have been recently opened, and you can find the details, along with the preliminary program, on our website:

<https://isvc2023.com/index.php>

The deadline for the submission of abstracts is the 25th of September 2022, and for the early bird registration, the 1st of December.

The program covers the main topics of interest for the current situation in the sheep sector: sustainability, tackling antimicrobial resistance and global threats to small ruminants. There is also a fourth stream organized by the European college of small ruminant health management (ECSRHM) and the Spanish society for sheep and goat production (SEOC).

The congress is a five-day event that includes five plenary sessions, more than seventy keynote presentations and nearly 300 oral communications. The social program will allow you to enjoy the most emblematic places in Seville.

In addition, registration for the pre-conference and post-conference tours will be opened in the following days. The former is an eight-day event that will take you from the north to the south of Spain, visiting for that touristic places but also local sheep farms, so you would be able to see the different types of production of the Spanish sheep industry together with beautiful landscape and historical monuments. The post-conference tour will focus on Andalusia's main cities but will also include visits to Andalusian sheep farms.

The organizing committee is looking forward to seeing you all there!
